Carmel Has Some Fire of Its Own

While people were just about recovering from the excitement incident to the big fire in Monterey, the Carmel siren at 9:30 Tuesday night got everybody all "het" up again.

The alarm, turned in by Harry Comings, on information brought in by John Kenneth Turner, was for the burning Hopper residence on the southern slope of the Eighty-acre tract.

The residence is almost entirely destroyed. That much adjoining property was not destroyed may be attributed wholly to the prompt and efficient efforts of the men of the Carmel Fire Department.

The loss is partly covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is not known, but was probably due to a defective flue in the fireplace, where a fire was burning when Mrs. Hopper left for the local movies with her daughter. Mrs. Hopper was not aware of the destruction of her home until told about it by Mrs. Walter Basham after the movies.

After a guard was posted around the burning ruins for the night, Fred Bechdolt took the fire boys to Gene Shaw's place for refreshments.

The Hoppers will rebuild. They are residing at the Hal Bragg home.

Not so many years ago the destroyed house, which was built by the Carmel Development Co. and owned by George Sterling, was Carmel's literary center, where not only the local literary lights gathered, but writers from other places as well—among them Ambrose Bierce, Jack London, Gertrude Atherton and George Alfred Smith.

James Hopper, the novelist, who has been in New York, is expected home next week.

Every Carmelite is appreciative of the willingness of the Monterey fire-fighters to assist in extinguishing the fire. Chief Parker and his men were Johnny-on-the-Spot.

LITTLE PILGRIMS

Colonel A. V. P. Anderson, Chief of Staff for the Ninth Corps Area, announces that a detachment of the Thirtieth Infantry will be here from October 12 to 18. It will consist of 12 officers, a 35-piece band,, and one battalion of regulars.

The Serra Pilgrimage underwriting fund has been raised over $2700 by the work of Robert G. Leidig, Serra solicitor. The fund is now $22,935, with slightly over $7,000 yet to go before the $30,000 mark is reached.

Joseph G. Hooper, of Carmel, has been appointed to serve with Father Raymond M. Mestres, Miss Maria Antonia Field and Jo Mora on the ceremonial committee for the Serra Pilgrimage.

"The Expedition of Anza" pageant, to be produced by Playcraft Club, of Salinas, will have a cast of 200 people. The Anza expedition brought 200 colonists to Monterey, including the first Spanish women.

Count de Monterrey, or the Duke of Alba, a Spanish nobleman, who is a decendant of Don Gaspar Zungi, Count of Monterrey, for whom this city was named, will be in America during Pilgrimage week and has been invited by Miss Maria Antonia Field, of the Pilgrimage executive committee, to attend that festival here.

A contract providing for a comprehensive scheme of street decorations for Monterey and Carmel during Serra Pilgrimage week, has just been closed with the Art Fontaine Decorating Company of Los Angeles. The stars and stripes with the red and gold of Spain's emblem will be combined in this display.

J. F. Devendorf and his daughter, Mrs. Frank Gibbs, departed for London last Saturday for dear ol' Lunnon. They will be away several months.

Oil and Water in Tragic Conflict at Monterey

Due to favorable winds and tides the city of Monterey stands today, saved from destruction by the fire which destroyed the entire plants of the Associated and Standard oil compaines, several fish canneries and many small houses.

The fire started shortly after ten o'clock last Sunday morning, caused by a bolt of lightning which first struck a tree on the Presidio reservation and then darted to one of the immense oil tanks on Lighthouse avenue in New Monterey, at once setting it on fire and endangering hundreds of lives and many acres of property.

It was not until Tuesday morning, after two days and two nights of superhuman effort on the part of the fire fighters that the flames were brought under control.

Two United States soldiers, Private George Boleo, 11th Cavalry, and Private Eustace Watkins, 76th Field Artillery, in their efforts to save lives and property, made the supreme sacrifice. There may be other dead. Many were injured.

Mayor Benjamin F. Wright has extended the city's thanks for the valuable assistance rendered by the fire departments of neighboring cities—Carmel, Pacific Grove, Salinas—and to Colonel H. J. Brees, post commander of the Monterey Presidio.

That the fire was halted on its mad sweep toward Pacific Grove is due entirely to the heroic and unceasing work of the men of Carmel's fire department, who spent twenty hours without interruption toward saving a city. We are proud of our boys.

The fire was not long under way before Carmel's three Josselyn boys had organized themselves into a hospital corps and a sandwich, fruit and coffee dispensary for the laboring firemen. They kept going until they dropped. Strike off some medals for them too.

The Carmel fire-fighting crew, according to a list supplied by Robert G. Leidig, was made up of the following:

Chief J. E. Nichols, First Assistant Chief Robt. G. Leidig, Engine Driver E. H. Shaw, Engine Driver C. E. Hoehn, Foreman Bill Sonnison, Teaby Nichols, Gus England, Argyll Campbell, Fred Ammerman, Ted Edwards, Frank Berkey, W. L. Overstreet, Frank Lee, Albert Stamps, William Jiminey, Pon Chung, Harry Turner, Delbert Wermuth.

It does not seem likely that the oil tanks will be rebuilt on the same site if the city council of Monterey taks into account the public opinion of not only Monterey, but of the whole Peninsula.

Harry Leon Wilson Undergoes Interview

When Sigurd Russell was here a short time ago with his Los Angeles Potboiler players, he conceived the idea of publishing a special Carmel edition of his fortnightly journal, "For Art's Sake." He gave up the idea of a special edition and decided to print his Carmel material from time to time. His interview with Harry Leon Wilson is an interesting close-up of our best-known literary light. Read it herewith:

"As I drove along the rugged shore from Carmel to the Highlands, bent on interviewing Harry Leon Wilson, I thought of the three wise tourists who once called on Tolstoy. Boiling all over, they mentioned one of his books as the dearest thing in their lives. And as the great writer replied that the book they mentioned was written by another author, they picked up their things and ran out of the room. And never had a chance to tell the home folks about visiting Tolstoy. So I thought it safer to confess to Wilson that I had not read him.

ABOUT CARMEL

"He has lived thirteen years in a castle on the cliffs five miles from Carmel, and this is his excuse for doing so: 'This spot is better than any part of California I have seen. I never wanted to have a home, but when I found Carmel, I settled at once. Yes, I have just completed a serial for the Saturday Evening Post, "Professor, How Could You?"

ABOUT MOVIES

"Someone told me to ask him if he had seen his brain child, 'Merton of the Movies,' in New York. And he answered: 'It would take more than that to get me to New York.' And to other questions, he said: 'If I were a producer I should look for stories written especially for the movies. The best photo-drama will be written as a photo-drama. Just as a play is written for the stage. Every time they take a book, they bungle it up in their adaptation of it.'

AMERICAN LITERATURE

"I think that we are getting good fiction and certainly good plays." Then I asked him if he thought that we should draw on Europe for plays. He said: "The idea that we must go to other countries to get something good is dying out. But no matter how well we do ourselves, we will always have to get the best from all over the world."

DECADENT LITERATURE

"Some people claim, I ventured, "that there is quite a decadent note in modern literature." He smiled as he walked up and down the room and compared bobbed hair to books. "It has been more or less the fashion for years, like bobbed hair. What is good in books will live and what is bad will go. These things are in the process of trying out. These books are a re-action from the old Puritanical books. But they are likely to go too far until they get their balance again."

New Exhibitors In Local Display

By Eunice T. Gray

When I dropped in, one afternoon, at Arts and Crafts Hall to review the Eighteenth Annual Exhibition of Paintings by Artists of Carmel and vicinity, I had expected the usual blue, blue bays, and green, green pines; the dear, sentimental pictures of the spots we love, our favorite paths over the headlands, our grotesque cypress trees, our special vista of the Carmel Mission and perhaps a sunset we had never forgotten. They were all there—how could forty painters in "Carmel and vicinity" fail to give expression in their medium to those scenes which we inexperienced ones helplessly describe as "lovely," "enchanting," "beautiful"!

With what joy I followed the wandering shore path to the mist-hung purple hills in Ada B. Champlin's "Carmel Shore," gazed down to Eva Belle Adams' "Monterey Bay," stood on Point Lobos looking out over De Neale Morgan's brilliant and intense "Turquois Sea" and paused at last to rest in the quiet peace of A. H. Knott's "Reflections."

How we love them and how we rejoice in the growth of these our very own Carmel painters!

But there is a subtle change in this exhibition, not only are there new names among the exhibitors, Myron Oliver, C. E. Morgan, Ada Howe Kent, Celia Seymore, Blanding Sloan, George Kotch, Wickliffe Covington, Ralph Davidson Miller and others, but there are new color tones, new values; there is a variety in this exhibit which gives it more than usual interest. One—The grey strength of William Ritschell's "Point Lobos;" Two—Myron Oliver's old world Italian roofs and French walls; Three—The sunny greens and warm browns of Ralph Davidson Miller; Four—The deep grey of the sea under Hammond's fishing boats at Gloucester; Five—Roberta Thudichum's Incense, these all show new moods and new concepts of the eternal beauty.

Four pictures in the exhibition have impressed me: Arthur Hammond's "Meditation" because it is a technically interesting portrait, of a real person—by a real person, I mean one who has put value into life. Second, Myron Oliver's "Afternoon," San Tropez, France, because of its satisfying color and composition. Third, Elizabeth Strong's "Russian Wolf Hound," because I love dogs, and this is a thoroughbred done in a thorough manner. Fourth, Blanding Sloan's "Sanctuary," an etching, because it says something very clearly that I've always felt and at the same time, it takes me out of myself, which Maurice Browne told us this summer, is one of the acid tests of art. There are other pictures I'd like to walk away with, but I will leave them there, on the old grey-green walls, for you to enjoy.

Among other peninsula exhibitors are Armin Hansen, John O'Shea, Ferdinand Burgdorff, Lester Boronda, Isabel Percy West, Isabel Hunter, Evelyn McCormack, Clark Hobart, Lee Randolph, and Fred G. Gray.

This is not a criticism—it is an appreciation.

Evening of Poetry

Members of Arts and Crafts are reminded that next Monday evening they are to have again the rare pleasure of hearing poetry read by its author—an evening such as they have not enjoyed since Clinton Scollard and Jessie B. Rittenhouse gave last spring.

Helen Hoyt (Mrs. John Lyman), who will read from her Acoric volume, "Appel Here in My Basket," and from unpublished works, is a poet of the modern school, an enthusiast, fearless and clear-thinking. She is a graduate of Columbia, and was for several years with Harriet Munroe in editing the Poetry Magazine of Chicago, in which so many of the new poets found their first editorial sanction. If any conservative member has courage to attack Mrs. Lyman on the subject of the new poetry next Monday evening, he will find her well able to explain and defend it.

Unique Musical Event Presented

By Laura Dierssen

The music-lovers of Monterey Peninsula were given an unusual treat last Monday evening at the Del Monte Art Gallery when "Sonia's Song" was presented by the courtesy of Sherman Clay & Co.

The performance began with a moving picture, taken in Russia, giving incidents in the composer's life, which inspired the writing of "Sonia's Song" as a tribute of his great love for Sonia.

It was a unique and unusual entertainment and the surprise of the evening came when David Pesetzki, the artist who took the leading role in the film, stepped from the picture to the platform.

The young pianist played a group of Chopin numbers most acceptably. It was a clever innovation in the rendering of the Faust Fantasy when the Steinway Duo Art piano and the artist alternated without the slightest interruption.

Juanita Tennyson sang with freshness and charm some delightful songs by modern composers. The "Boat Song" with its lovely ryhthm was especially appreciated.

Last but not least enjoyable was the stunning effect produced when the Steinway Duo Art piano played the great Chopin Scherzo.

Written in Carmel--- Staged in Los Angeles

Carmel again speaks with pride of its art and literary colony, whose members, seeking the quiet and inspiration of the pines, hurry on to achievement. Captain Michael J. Phillips, a well-known story writer and newspaper man, who spent the summer here in the Alden house, has captured the prize with his play, "California," written here, which is to open the new Carthay Theatre in Los Angeles. It is a historical play of interior California, dealing with the action and romance of the forties.

Captain Phillips' play, "Platinum Handcuffs," dramatized by an Eastern playwright from the story of the same name, will open on Broadway soon. Other plays to be put on shortly are "The Silken Bully" and a dramitazation of the recent Red Book story, "Salome—When She Danced."

Make Room for Our Next Month's Guests

Housing conditions are apt to be somewhat serious during Pilgrimage Week. It is really a matter of loyalty and hospitality on Carmel residents to do all they can to provide accommodations.

We have guests coming at our invitation from far and near. It is necessary to that they be housed. Have you a room that you can spare for that week or part of that week? If so, cut out the blank below, fill it in, and mail to any local realty office.

THE QUALITY OF MERCY

The following paragraphs from an address by B. J. Lice, Superintendent of Schools, Sheffield, Mass., are reprinted from the Journal of Education:

"I assume that all agree as to the value, the necessity of humane education. The question is what to do and how to do it.

"What to do depends on the objects of humane education, which are in brief these:

"1. Practical knowledge—for the subject is as practical as the multiplication table—knowledge about the care of domestic animals, the value of birds to farmers, and like subjects.

"2. The prevention of the suffering of animals.

"3. Training in thoughtfulness, sympathy and mercy, for the prevention of all cruelty towards either man or beast.

"I want to put a ton of emphasis on this idea, an idea so often overlooked, that after all it is not so much the suffering of the animal which we are trying to prevent as the moral degeneration of the person who causes that suffering. So much for the why and the what, now for the the how."

WE BELIEVE THAT IT IS:

FAIRER to train a child to do right.

EASIER to cultivate good habits than to remove bad ones.

CHEAPER to prevent crimes than to cure the criminal.

BUSINESSLIKE to form character, instead of trying to reform it.

TEACH YOUR CHILDREN TO BE KIND TO ALL ANIMALS.

Children should be taught to be kind to all animals. A cruel child makes a bad man or woman.

One of the important things to teach children is to take good care of their household pets; to remember to feed and water them regularly.

We are only doing right when we treat every living creature as we would wish to be treated ourselves. If you drive a horse or own a horse, think how you would like to be treated if you were that horse. Treat your dog and cat as you would like to be treated if you were that dog or cat.

Make the world happier because you have lived in it.

There is to be a Dog Show at the Del Monte Hotel grounds on October Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth, Mr. A. A. Rost, a well-known judge from New York, will judge all breeds. Carmel should make a good showing.

Begin now to get your dogs in condition. Mrs. C. H. Yates will have entry blanks sent you if you notify her before the Sixth of October.

THINK FOR YOURSELF

Do your own thinking. Do not let others think for you.

Socrates was condemned to drink the hemlock because he made a nuisance of himself. He developed the disconcerting habit of buttonholing the young men of Athens in the streets and by adroit questioning made them examine their stock of ideas.

What do you believe? Why do you believe it? Can your beliefs about yourself, the gods, the commonwealth, your money, stand the test of a rigid cross-examination? These were the questions he asked and to which he demanded an answer. Summon your opinions before the bar of your reason and submit them to analysis of logic, of experience, of common sense!

Of course an old busybody like that could not be allowed to live. He was a heretic because he put an interrogation point upon the popular religion. He was an anarchist because he refused obeisance to the ancient traditions. He was a disturber of the peace because he made men think.

"Men fear thought, as they fear nothing else on earth—more than ruin, more even than death," says Bertrand Russell.

Yet, whatever provokes thought is good. Whatever lulls one into a self-satisfied somnolence is bad.

DON'T BE THE "OTHER FELLOW"

About 15,700 lives were lost in motor vehicle accidents (exclusive of grade crossing collisions between motor vehicles and trains) in the United States during 1923, an increase of nearly 2,000 over the 1922 record. Grade crossing fatalities make a total exceeding 17,000.

This estimate was made by the National Safety Committee of the Automobile Department of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters on the basis of statistics of 135 cities.

It may be all right to insure your car against fire, theft, collision, public liability and property damage, and so long as the accident which may be due to your carelessness merely hurts the "other fellow" you let the insurance company worry about the cost. But if you happen to be the "other fellow," insurance collected by your heirs may not help you in the place to which you go.

No insurance has yet been found which will prevent death and injury; hence, it pays to be careful.

Pine Needles

Mrs. Josephine Loomis, who has been visiting in Hollywood and San Mateo, has returned to Carmel.

N. Henderson, a lawyer of Wichita Falls, Texas, uncle of Mrs. Lois Dibrell, spent a few days here recently, enroute to the bay cities.

Former Carmelites, Mrs. Mary Falkner and her eldest daughter, Miss Helen, were here from Palo Alto this week. Miss Helen is in her senior year at Stanford.

The Leland-Alexander house in south Carmel has been purchased by Dr. P. B. Wright, a dentist of Pasadena, who was here with his family this week.

State President Marion Delany of the League of Women Voters will speak at the Pacific Grove city hall next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Carmel members are urged to be present.

Another birthday this week had its cheerful effect on the Boys' Club. The added refreshments seem on these occasions to give increased zest to the games and activities, the latter being directed against John Blackwell, who had the pleasure of seeing his companions consume the ice cream and cake which his mother provided. The next club election takes place on Wednesday, October 1.

Local Play Writing Contest Announced

By SUSAN PORTER

The newly elected Forest Theater board met for organization Monday, September 15th, and elected the following officers: President, Dr. A. E. Burton; vice-president, John N. Hilliard; secretary, Susan Porter; treasurer, William T. Kibbler; historian, Helena Conger. Rules for this year's play contest were laid down and plans discussed in general.

The following important action, to which the attention of all readers is drawn, was taken upon motion of Mr. Kibbler: The board in charge of Forest Theater and Arts and Crafts plays invites the play producers of Carmel to submit tentative lists of plays they would be willing to stage during the coming winter season. The board would prefer that plays be listed in the order of the producer's preference, and that the size of the cast and the approximate cost of production be stated.

The board desires to make it clear that their intention is to include in this invitation not only those producers already known to Carmel but everyone, whether resident or visitor, who has the desire to attempt a production.

The board will meet on September 30th, and with these submitted lists before them, will block out their winter program.

Last Sunday's big fire in Monterey nearly entirely depopulated Carmel of people and automobiles.

Contractor M. J. Murphy is proceeding rapidly with the Porter home at Twelfth avenue and Lincoln street.

The Rigney rustic cottage, in north Carmel, has been purchased by Leslie Harvey, who is organist at the Coliseum, in San Francisco.

Mrs. Jennie Munson, of Berkeley, is here for a few weeks, accompanied by her neice, Miss Harriet Parsons. The mother of the latter will join them next month.

A residence is under way for H. D. Higgenbotham, of Berkeley, at Eighth and Lincoln streets, this city. A. Rodgers, of Oakland, is the builder in charge.

Vacationists here from Palo Alto are Professor C. B. Wing, and family. Professor Wing is of the faculty of the engineering department at Stanford University.

Several carpenters are at work on the construction of the frame on the new residence which is being built by the Misses Denny and Watrous, in north Carmel.

The Wee Acorn, publication of the pupils of the Forest Hill outdoor school, has a new editor—Sigfred Unander, of Portland, Oregon. The former editor, Valkyrie Campbell, has returned to Honolulu.

Mrs. Helen Wilson recently returned from a business trip to San Francisco. Beginning next January there will be something of a scarcity of bulbs, so that Mrs. Wilson has a considerable quantity to supply her patrons of the Bloomin' Basement.

Vala Eyvind, concert pianist, is spending some time in Carmel. She has studied in Leipzig, and Berlin, and in New York with Poala Gallico. At one time she was Grieg interpretor in the public schools of New York City. Privately she is Mrs. Ferdinand Earle.

Those who have established a legal residence here—one year in the state, ninety days in the county and thirty days in the precinct—are entitled to vote at the Presidential election in November. If you have not registered since January 1 this year, do so in order to vote. Pine Cone office.

Experienced woman driver will take ladies out in closed car. Reasonable rates per hour. Leave orders at garage, Monte Verde near Tenth, or address P. O. Box 622, Carmel. adv

Chop Suey Saturdays and Sundays at Curtis'.

El Monte Verde apartment owned by Mrs. M. L. Hamlin, is undergoing extensive alterations under the direction of Contractor Percy Parkes. Parkes is also building the Charles Watson residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Park left on Thursday for a trip principally through the Southern states. They will spend some time in St. Louis and Dallas, in the latter city being guests of their daughters. They will be home in time for the presidential election.

George S. Eardley of San Jose, regional manager of Sherman, Clay & Co., was here early this week with Philip Fuhrman in connection with the establishment of a Carmel branch.

An old institution, abandoned for a time, is to function again. Miss M. M. Hunkins announces the opening of the tearoom and giftshop on Camino Real next Tuesday. It will be known as "The Old Cabin."

Prof. and Mrs. F. J. Rogers and son John of Stanford University are occupying their bungalow on the beach on San Antonio street. They have as guests their son Robert and his wife and infant son of Bakersfield, where Robert holds a position as oil inspector in the state mining bureau. Mrs. Rogers is resting after a strenuous campaign in the recent primary election, when she was an independent candidate for the state senate.

A delightful luncheon was served Monday at The Lark, the hostesses being Mrs. Robert A. Leitch and Miss Alice McChesney. The affair was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Field and their house-guest, Miss Morrissey of St. Louis, who are leaving in a few weeks for an extended tour of the north. Other guests present were Capt. and Mrs. John W. Ward, Mrs. F. R. Day, and Mrs. Alice Nugent

No Assessment Raises

As intimated in last week's Pine Cone there will be no raises in property value assessments for the 1924-25 taxable period, the city trustees having decided to defer the matter of equalizing values until next year, when an expert will be employed, prior to March 1st, to prosecute the matter—as has been done in many California municipalities.
